LIND CONFERS WITH MEXICO'S LATEST PREMIER

Two Developments Indicate Indorsement of President Wilson's Policy.

JAPAN MAY SNUB DIAZ

Great Britain, in Recognizing Huerta, Made It Clear It Regarded Him as Provisional President.

Mexico City, Aug. 12.—Mr. Lind and Senor Gamboa, the new Foreign Minister, conferred this afternoon, but President Wilson's envoy refused to comment on his visit when seen later. He declared he would not discuss his mission in any way whatever.

Many visitors called on the American envoy today but this evening he complained of a cold and a headache, and callers were informed that he could not be disturbed.

It was Senor Gamboa's predecessor, Manuel Aldape, that voiced the declaration that Lind would be regarded by Gen. Huerta as a "pernicious foreigner," if he came here and tried to meddle in Mexico's internal affairs.

The charge indicated that there had been marked clearing of the clouds on the horizon since Mexico was advised that Lind came here as a private citizen of the United States without a message to any of the contending factions.

Private advice state that the city of Torreon has been captured by the rebels, and the government claims that it still holds the city.

Power's Support Likely.

The probability that President Wilson will have the sympathy and moral support of the powers for the policy he has evolved for settling the Mexican problem was emphasized yesterday by two developments.

One of these was the reported intimation by the Japanese government to the Mexican diplomatic representative at Tokyo that the Mikado will not receive Gen. Felix Diaz, whom President Huerta has sent as a special envoy to extend the thanks of Mexico for Japanese participation in the Mexican centennial celebration. The other development that is regarded as significant is a statement by the British Foreign Office emphasizing the fact that Great Britain, in recognizing the Huerta government, made it clear that it regarded Huerta as a provisional president, who was expected to firm only until a constitutional election was held.

The statement of the British government was given out last night in answer to recent comment that England's recognition of the Huerta government was procured by financial interests, which desired to establish the provisional President upon a firm footing. This was the British statement.

"The recognition of President Huerta was the recognition of a provisional President pending an election," it was done on the advice of the British Minister to Mexico as being likely to assist in the restoration of order—an important consideration, in view of the large British interests involved.

The French and German governments also recognized President Huerta after a reception by him of the whole diplomatic party, at which a congratulatory speech was made in their behalf by the American Ambassador.

No Comment by Bryan.

A copy of the British statement has not been transmitted to the State Department by Ambassador Page, and no official comment upon it could be obtained from Secretary Bryan. It is known, however, that the administration was agreeably impressed by the action of the British Foreign Office, indicating at least a spirit of friendliness toward the mission on which John Lind has been sent to Mexico City. It is true, however, that the correspondence between the State and British Foreign Office relating to the recognition of Huerta already had made clear the nature of the recognition which England was tendering the Mexican ruler and no extraordinary significance attached to the statement in official circles as far as the Mexican situation is concerned. The significance consists in the fact that the British Foreign Office.

BALTIMORE MAN SHOTS WOMAN; THEN HIMSELF

Miss Eleanor Cole and Julian Edmund Both Dying After Alleged Accident.

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 12.—After shooting his sister-in-law, Miss Eleanor Cole, thirty-three years old, daughter of U. S. chief assessor of the Appeal Tax Court, Julian Edmund, thirty-seven years old, of 221 Abell Avenue, shot a bullet into himself. Both are in a dying condition in St. Luke's Hospital.

The police have been unable to get any other than meager statements from members of the family, and these statements are to the effect that the tragedy was an accident. The chief assessor of Miss Cole is concerned. They claim that after he had seen what had been done, Edmund turned the weapon upon himself.

But, in direct opposition to this, Cora Steen, colored, of 322 Barclay Street, which is directly in the rear of the Edmund home, says that she witnessed the entire affair, and saw Miss Cole run down the rear steps leading to the yard and saw Edmund step to the rear door and fire two shots. She claims she then saw him turn the pistol on himself and die.

Next, the Steen woman claims, she saw Mrs. Edmund run into the yard, grab the pistol, fire a shot in the air, and then help another woman, whose name is unknown to the police, carry Miss Cole into the house.

Surgeons Call on Doctors.

London, Aug. 12.—In spite of the police precautions, a group of suffragists smuggled themselves into Albert Hall today and interrupted the International Medical Congress, which was being addressed by John Burns, the famous labor leader. They were forcibly ejected.

CLAYTON NAMED U. S. SENATOR BY GOV. O'NEAL

Alabama Representative Appointed Regardless of Legal Entanglement.

LONG SERVICE IN HOUSE

Appointee a Lawyer of Ability and New Chairman of Judiciary Committee.

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 12.—Henry D. Clayton, at present serving as Representative for the Third Congressional District of Alabama, was today appointed by Gov. O'Neal to the United States Senate to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Joseph F. Johnston.

Mr. Clayton's commission was at once presented to him, and the new Senator on accepting the post stated that he would leave immediately for Washington to be sworn in. He will not formally relinquish his position as Representative until he has been admitted to the Senate.

Long House Service.

Mr. Clayton has had sixteen years continuous service in the House of Representatives, and is now in his ninth consecutive term. His home is at Eufrasia. He is fifty-six years old, and is regarded as one of the ablest lawyers in the House. The first office he ever held was as a member of the Alabama Legislature, during which term he served as chairman of the Judiciary committee, and as United States Attorney in President Cleveland's second administration.

He has been a conspicuous figure in Democratic national conventions for many years, and was permanent chairman of the convention at Denver in 1906. He was Democratic Presidential elector in 1888 and in 1902. Judge Clayton was re-elected about two years ago, his wife being a daughter of the late Samuel Marshall Davis, of Georgetown, Ky.

Governor Without Power.

It has been the opinion of the leading lawyers in the Senate that the Governor was without power to appoint, in the absence of any specific authorization by the Alabama Legislature, made since the proclamation of the constitutional amendment for the election of Senators by direct vote.

Many Senators wired Gov. O'Neal, urging him to call the Alabama Legislature in special session at once and obtain authority to name a Senator ad interim. None of these telegrams, however, suggested to Gov. O'Neal that he had authority to make an appointment in the absence of action by the Alabama Legislature. Senators generally proceeded on the theory that the Governor could not appoint until after the Legislature had met and authorized him to do so.

Under the wording of the new constitutional amendment, vacancies shall be filled by election, and the Governor is authorized to issue writs of election for the purpose.

Such a purpose, but a proviso is added that the Legislature "may" authorize the Governor to fill vacancies by appointment until such time as the Legislature had made provision for an election by the people.

Senators Doubt Authority.

The majority of the Senators who have been studying the new constitutional amendment, and particularly the proviso, hold to the view that the Governor can have no power to appoint unless the Legislature has taken action since the proclamation of the constitutional amendment specifically giving him that power.

It was the opinion of leading Republican members of the Judiciary Committee last night that when the new Senator presents himself for the oath of office it will be administered to him without question, and his credentials will be referred to the Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections to investigate and report upon. This will give Senator Clayton the right to vote on the tariff bill, and any vote he may cast will not affect the validity of legislation, even in cases where his vote may be decisive.

W. C. Martin, of Toronto, Canada, Murdered in Supposedly Vacant Room in New York.

New York, Aug. 12.—The body of W. C. Martin, a wealthy owner of a large millinery establishment in Toronto, Canada, was found tonight in a furnished rooming house at 43 West 27th Street, this city. His hands had been bound behind him with a gas tube, his mouth had been gagged by two handkerchiefs and he had been murdered by being stabbed repeatedly in the neck.

Not a clue was left by the murderer, excepting possibly a woman's hat and a trinket were taken.

How Mr. Martin came to be in the house was a mystery not only to the police, but to Theodore Jones, who conducts the house. The room in which the body was found was supposed to be empty and Mr. Martin was a stranger in the place.

He arrived in this city Monday morning to purchase his fall stock.

ARMY DESERTER FOUND IN CAMP

W. C. Cameron Left Regular Service Without Leave, It Is Alleged.

WIFE ALSO IS FORSAKEN

Brother-in-Law Recognizes Cook and Reports Case to Officers, His Arrest Following.

By STAFF CORRESPONDENT.

Camp Ordway, Bolivar Heights, W. Va., Aug. 12.—As a result of his identity being disclosed by a brother-in-law, Walter C. Cameron, alias William Metcalf, a cook in the Second Regiment of the District National Guard, was arrested this evening on a charge of desertion from the United States Army.

Lawrence A. Quinn, the brother-in-law, a member of Company D, First Regiment, recognized Cameron last Sunday, and immediately informed his superior officers, who lost no time in communicating with the War Department at Washington.

Placed Under Arrest.

In response to the notification Lieut. Strong, of the Washington Barracks, accompanied by a sergeant, reached Camp Ordway this afternoon, and at 5 o'clock placed the alleged deserter under arrest. He was locked up in the Second Regiment guardhouse, but later was conveyed in an automobile to Harper's Ferry, from whence the Washington officers and their prisoner started for the Capital.

Cameron, who is a salesman, and who lives at 366 M Street Northwest, Washington, enlisted in the army at Fort Hunt during July 1910. He is said to have deserted last April—about two months before his enlistment expired. At the same time he deserted his wife and a little child, who now are living with Mrs. Cameron's relatives at Murphy Station near Fort Myer, Va. Quinn says that the wife is desirous of having her husband returned to her, and she is now living with the family. Mrs. Cameron also charges her husband with forging checks on the canteen at Fort Hunt.

Upon entering the District National Guard, Cameron presented an honorable discharge from the Third Field Artillery, Battery D. Following his arrest tonight, he told The Herald's correspondent he had been in the army for two years, and that he came from Kansas City, Kan. The

FAMOUS DEAF GIRL HEARS FIRST MUSIC

Miss Helen Keller Says Sound of Rare Violin Like Singing Angels' Voices.

Potosky, Mich., Aug. 12.—Miss Helen Keller, the famous blind, deaf, and dumb girl, has heard her first note of music. She caught the vibrations of a violin string through her teeth, held against the bridge of the instrument. Although her ear drums are useless, Prof. Franz Kohler, of the Berlin Conservatory, declared today that the harmonies had been communicated to her brain, and she had caught the strains.

The first note which the former correspondent of the Pittsburgh Synagogue Orchestra played for Miss Keller was on the violin. She was astonished. She held her teeth firmly against the scroll while Prof. Kohler played strains of Saint-Saens' "The Swan," using both the high and low registers.

"Like the voices of singing angels," Miss Keller communicated to Miss Macy, her teacher.

Miss Keller was exhausted from the excitement. Miss Macy declared today that this is the first musical sound that has reached the brain of Miss Keller, and she reported that she has known musical harmony before.

PRESIDENT LYNCH WINS

Delegates Kill Proposition Aimed at Typographical Union Head.

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 12.—President Lynch, of the International Typographical Union, was again victorious today. When the convention met delegates sustained by an overwhelming vote the recommendation of the law committee which reported unfavorably on the proposition to make officers of the international union ineligible to serve more than two years. This proposition, which was made by Delegate Beadle, of Tacoma, was aimed particularly at President Lynch. Delegates this afternoon attended an old-fashioned barbecue at Glenloch Park. Three thousand persons attended.

POLICE LAY CRIME TO "JACK-THE-RIPPER"

Man of Wild Instincts Has Attacked Women in New York in Last Week.

New York, Aug. 12.—The detectives who have been working on the mysterious murder of the girl whose body was found in Cold Spring lane near Spuyten Duyvil Creek last Sunday night now believe that the crime was committed by some one of "Jack-the-Ripper" like proclivities.

The police were led to this theory after the attack made on Miss Lizzie Wittell, a young woman, in the Bronx while on her way home from Pelham Bay Park last night. The girl told the police that when near Pelham Parkway an unknown man grabbed her from behind and began choking her and at the same time drawing a knife. Her screams attracted the attention of passers-by and the assailant fled.

The victim of the Spuyten Duyvil crime has not been identified.

GIRL THIEF ARRESTED ON EVE OF WEDDING

Daisy Copeland, Seventeen, Had Stolen $312 Worth of Goods for Her Fiancee.

Desire to make a dressy showing before the man she is engaged to marry led pretty seventeen-year-old Daisy Copeland, of 311 D Street Northwest, to become a shoplifter. Her case has aroused the sympathy of every detective on the Central Office force.

Large department store managers have complained to the police that costly dresses have been stolen during the last few weeks. Central Office Detective Pratt was detailed to the case, and yesterday he arrested the Copeland girl.

When taken to the police headquarters she at first declared her innocence. Detective Charles Evans convinced the girl that the police would befriend her if she told the truth, and again put her on the right path. She broke down and confessed to Detective Pratt that she had shoplifted goods enough to make up her wedding trousseau, for today was her wedding day.

Now the merchants from whom she stole the goods are sorry for her, and are willing that the juvenile court shall be lenient with her. Detective Pratt will return all of the stolen goods, and the worst possibly the girl will face in court this afternoon will be a good lecture by Judge Latimer. The total value of the dresses she stole is placed at $312.

VOTE IN HOUSE FORCED BY MANN

But Resolution on McAdoo Statement Is Defeated, 210 to 55.

DEBATE BECOMES WARM

Minority Leader Says if Cabinet Officer Made Remark Without Knowing Facts He Ought to Retire.

Republican Leader James B. Mann of Illinois, with the able assistance of Representative Frank E. Mondell of Wyoming, gave the majority Democrats an unpleasant hour yesterday in their fight to force through the House a resolution calling upon the Secretary of the Treasury to transmit to the House "the facts in his possession upon which he based the charge recently made by him that the recent decline in the price of United States 2 per cent bonds is due 'almost wholly to what appears to be a campaign waged with every indication of concerted action on the part of a number of influential New York City financiers.'"

The discomfiture of the Democrats was occasioned by Representative Mondell's request for immediate consideration of the resolution. Speaker Clark was compelled to permit the House to vote on the resolution, defending his action by saying that the resolution was too skillfully drawn to be avoided. Representative Mann demanded the "aye" and "noes" on the resolution, which was promptly defeated on present consideration by a vote of 20 to 25.

Majority Leader Underwood opposed consideration of the resolution, on the ground that it was not before the House of Representatives, and that it was not privileged. The Republicans came back at Mr. Underwood with a vengeance, presenting Mr. Underwood's statement that Secretary McAdoo's allegations were only an expression of personal opinion.

Mr. Mann said, shouting his announcement from the middle of the Republican side:

"All of Secretary McAdoo's statements are official when they refer to the conduct of his department. This is an exceedingly important statement of his. He made a charge of conspiracy on the part of the banks which owe their existence to the law of the land, and if these are true we ought to know them. If the Secretary of the Treasury made this statement without knowing the facts then he ought to retire."

"This is not the only resolution asking

SENATOR CULBERSON'S ILLNESS IS SERIOUS

Texas Has Been at Atlantic City Throughout Session and Will Be Unable to Vote on Tariff Bill.

Disquieting reports as to the physical condition of Senator Charles A. Culbertson of Texas, who is in a sanatorium in Connecticut, reached the Senate yesterday. He is completely isolated, by the direction of his physicians, and efforts to communicate with him, made by Senate leaders, failed.

Senator Culbertson went to Atlantic City shortly after the adjournment of the regular session of Congress and has not been in attendance on the extra session. His friends do not take a very hopeful view of his case.

As the time for the final vote on the tariff bill approaches there is considerable activity on the part of the Senate leaders directed toward bringing back the absent Senators, or arranging pairs. It is this situation which led the Senate Democratic leaders to try to get into direct communication with Senator Culbertson, and which disclosed the fact that he is too ill, in the opinion of his family and his physician, to discuss official matters.

GIRL GIVES JURY STORY OF TRIP WITH M. I. DIGGS

Marsha Warrington Takes Stand in Trial of Diggs and Caminetti.

M'NAB ALSO A WITNESS

Young Woman Says Diggs Bought Ticket and Caminetti Gave Companion Money.

San Francisco, Aug. 12.—Marsha Warrington, the young woman with whom Maury I. Diggs, now on trial on a charge of violation of the Mann white slave act, is alleged to have made the trip to Reno, took the stand this afternoon to tell her part of the story of the trip. The courtroom that had been filled by a throng eager to hear the details of the trial, was less crowded than heretofore, due to the order of Judge Van Fleet prohibiting any from entering the room but those who could find seats. The room has benches only for thirty persons and late comers were turned from the doors.

When Miss Warrington came to tell her story she spoke in such low tones that Judge Van Fleet had continually to admonish her to speak up. Finally even he decided it was useless to try for louder vocalism. Diggs never took his eyes from her in all the hour and twenty minutes of her ordeal before adjournment—an ordeal that began with their acquaintance last fall and that carried them in a Pullman drawing room to Reno last March. He leaned forward in his seat, hand to ear to catch each low spoken word.

Caminetti, with tense demeanor, leaned forward just behind Diggs.

Had Objected to Trip.

She insisted both she and Leola Norris had struggled for two weeks against importunities and the arguments and threats of Diggs and Caminetti before they agreed to elope to Reno; that they had even missed one train on the fatal Sunday night before they had at last consented.

After learning her name and see, Mr. Rocks asked:

"Do you know the defendant, Maury I. Diggs?"

"I do."

"How long have you known him?"

"Since last September."

"Do you recall a trip you made with him to Reno on March 10 last?"

"I do."

"Had the trip been discussed with Diggs before you made it?"

"Yes."

"Then the told of having met Drew Caminetti in October last, and how he had paid attention to Miss Norris in their foursome outings. The four were riding in the automobile of Diggs when he first proposed flight from Sacramento."

Knew They Were Married.

"Did you know Diggs and Caminetti were married?"

"Yes, sir."

"She also related that Diggs had said his relations with his wife were unpleasant; that he was unhappy with her; that he wanted to leave town; that he loved her more than his wife, and that he would marry her after he got a divorce."

"Was marriage discussed between you in the two weeks before the trip to Reno?"

"Yes," he said he would be divorced and marry me. He told us his father was coming up from Berkeley to prosecute Caminetti and himself, and that we would all have to leave town. He said Attorney Harris advised this, and showed a check for $5 he had paid the lawyer for the advice."

"How many times were you in his company in the two weeks before you went to Reno?"

"Five or six times. We met at night. Mr. Caminetti and Miss Norris were always with us. Mr. Diggs took us in his machine."

Tells of Many Threats.

Then came out the story of how Diggs had taken a Sacramento paper was to publish the story of their elopement, and how, unless they all fled, the girls would be arrested, put through the third degree and sent to the reform school, and how they finally sneaked from their homes on Sunday night.

Diggs bought the tickets and Caminetti gave Miss Norris some money, she said.

But then even one train was permitted to go out without them because the timid girls could not make up their minds to take the plunge.

There was plenty of details about the taking of the drawing room, the secrets of the toilet and the pairing off of the couples. Four tickets from Sacramento to Reno were admitted in evidence.

When court adjourned the party had reached the Nevada city, taken luncheon at a restaurant and were on their way to the Riverside Hotel. The tale of Miss Warrington will be resumed at 10 o'clock tomorrow.

Jo. L. McNab, who elevated the case from an episode to a Cabinet crisis, was to stand for a moment to identify exhibits.

FOES OF SULZER AT MIGHT IN HUNT FOR VOTES

Looking for Enough Support to Get Impeachment Bill By.

WIFE WOULD SAVE HIM

Tells Senator Palmer in Conference that It Was She, Not Husband, Signed Checks.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 12.—At midnight tonight the Democratic majority leaders in the Assembly were patiently awaiting the two men whose votes will be necessary to impeach William Sulzer of high crimes and misdemeanors.

These two men—Assemblymen Ingraham and Kornblith, both of Brooklyn—left New York at 3:30 p. m. and are due here a little after 1 o'clock in the morning. The moment they arrive voting will begin on the impeachment resolution. This, if adopted, will be followed tomorrow by the adoption of the articles of impeachment, and the seal of the State of New York will pass into the keeping of Martin H. Glynn, Lieutenant Governor.

One overshadowing sensation in the remarkable conflict was the story tonight that the Governor's wife had offered to sing herself between him and his accusers, perhaps to sacrifice herself to save him.

Wife's Effort to Save.

This story was brought to the Capital this evening by Senator Palmer of Kingston, who came from a concert at which Mrs. Sulzer insisted to him that it was she and not her husband who had signed the name of William Sulzer to the checks turned up by the Frawley committee, that she had signed and deposited checks for him for the same business in his name, feeling that her business instinct was better than his.

The statement of the Governor's wife which might save him from conviction before the Senate impeachment court if repeated there is that she believed her husband had no knowledge whatever of the checks she deposited or of the transactions into which they entered. The Assembly convened with difficulty tonight because of the crowds. At midnight, through of people filled the corridors and messengers and messages had to be sent flying about the State to drag in the necessary seventy-six votes.

Rumor that Trouble Is Over.

The convening of the Assembly tonight followed a day in which one sensation followed another with stunning swiftness. Late in the afternoon a hurried visit of Senator Frawley to the Governor spread abroad the rumor that a reconciliation had been effected and that the Governor would be saved. Frawley soon denied this, but it was said why he had seen the Governor.

Shortly after noon the Governor, who up to the last had refused to admit that the Assembly had the right to impeach, held a serious consultation with Adj. Gen. Hamilton, with a view to protecting himself with a line of laymen (should an attempt be made forcibly to remove him).

A rally of the Republicans around Sulzer frustrated the plans of the Democratic leaders to impeach in the morning, and messengers and messages had to be sent flying about the State to drag in the necessary seventy-six votes.

Republicans Fear Glynn.

The fight against Glynn, which is due to the fear of the Republicans that his administration will relieve the shattered Democratic fortunes, has been taken up by all the Republicans save three, and has already become a menace to the plans of the Democrats.

The Governor, in council with his friends, spent a placid day after a sleepless night. His eyes are red from lack of rest, and his face is drawn and haggard with care, but his outward demeanor is calm, and he is apparently still full of confidence that he will pass unscathed through this most momentous time in his history.

He retired after midnight to the executive mansion, as he did last evening, and directed his fight by message and telephone. His wife, whose office he will pass unscathed through this most momentous time in his history.
